Description:

Are you a professional?
 Would you like to be?

Are you concerned that your individual accomplishments might not measure up to others in your field?

Are you less interested in putting in the time and effort required to have a dazzling list of accolades than you are in having any accolades at all which can be attributed to your name?

I will write for you an introduction, suitable for presentation at speaking engagements, meetings, conferences, or essentially any time at which you enter a room and/or are about to speak to one or more other people.

I will take seemingly mundane facts which are loosely correlated to the field in which you'd like to garner respect, and transform them into an elaborate, lengthy, and detailed introduction that will turn your colleagues into admirers.*

*Not guaranteed.

We can correspond via email and by phone if necessary. The final piece will be delivered via email. I will provide both a .pdf of the text, as well as a voice recording of me reading the introduction, in the event you'd like it to announce you but don't have anyone else available to read it before you start speaking.
